AAQD revision

FAIRMODE recommendations

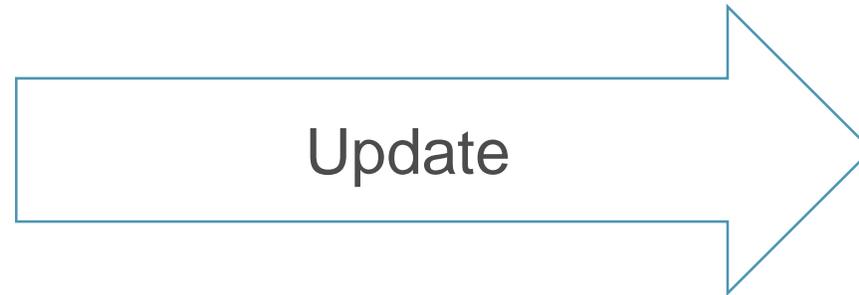

- These recommendations are FAIRMODE's contribution to the on-going revision of the EU AAQDs. They also support the Implementing Decision 2011/850/EC on the reciprocal exchange of information and reporting on ambient air quality (IPR).
- The current document has been revised in view of the latest consensus on the maturity of modelling applications and their uses for air quality management purposes.
- It identifies how and where these recommendations may be included in the context of the revision of the AAQDs

The main recommendation from FAIRMODE is to secure and enable an extended use of modelling for air quality management purposes.

A formal role for modelling (and FAIRMODE)

FAIRMODE recommends that each Member State (MS) should identify the main (national) reference institution related to air quality modelling applications, which will be encouraged to engage with the FAIRMODE network (in case they are not doing so yet). The role of national FAIRMODE reference institutions shall be clearly stated since this will be an important step to ensure that all the recommendations will be followed in the most adequate way/process.
